

Six Carved Roman Hypocaust Pillars

Set of six red sandstone carved Roman Hypocaust Pillars.

The Hypocaust -from the Greek word meaning 'Fire Beneath'- was a common form of central heating used by Romans. Pillars of stone or tile supported the floors, and hot air from a furnace was fed through the space beneath, and taken up the side of the building through chimneys. Thus the rooms were kept warm and dry, and the furnace could also be used to heat the water for the baths.

DIMENSIONS:

Height 32 ¼ inches X Width (variable) from 11 – 13 inches

Our stock code: ZCWPR000012-WAL
Price: FULL SET OF 6 £5,000.00 + VAT
 BEST PRICE PER PAIR £2,000.00 + VAT

E. & O. E.

wood flooring / bathrooms & radiators / reclaimed building materials / original fireplaces & interior features / garden ornaments / architectural features

Walcot MASCo Architectural Salvage

108 Walcot Street, Bath, BA1 5BG | T. +44 (0)1225 444 404 | F. +44 (0)1225 480 732 sales@mascowalcot.com www.walcot.com

Walcot Salvage Ltd. trading as Walcot MASCo Architectural Salvage. Registered in England & Wales No. 07156552